2 Learning Counterinsurgency: Observations from Soldering in Iraq

Lieutenant General David H. Petraeus, U.S. Army

The Army has gained a great deal of experience in Iraq and Afghanistan about COIN operations. Here, one of the Army's most experienced commanders details 14 lessons learned.

13 The Objective Beyond War: Counterinsurgency and the Four Tools of Political Competition

Montgomery McFate, Ph.D., J.D., and Andrea V. Jackson

Beating the opposition requires COIN forces to make it worthwhile for the civilian population to support the government. How? By providing security—or taking it away.

27 Political Islam in West Africa and the Sahel

Ricardo Laremont, Ph.D., and Hrach Gregorian, Ph.D.

Since 9/11, homeland defense is a particularly urgent issue. Three serious threats to U.S. security are found in West Africa and the Sahel.

37 The Second Learning Revolution

Major General Robert H. Scales, U.S. Army, Retired

Our experience in Vietnam revealed serious faults in the way we prepared for war. In that conflict, Soldiers learned that superior technology alone could not ensure victory.

45 Reconstitution of a Heavy Division: 1st AD Prepares for War

Major Kevin Rants, U.S. Army

Given an opportunity to fine-tune their recovery plan, 1st Armored Division logisticians completely retooled the division in a mere 10 months.

50 Operation Unified Assistance: Tsunami Transitions

Lieutenant Colonel James Daniel, U.S. Army

In 2004, a tsunami struck Southeast Asia, leaving thousands of people dead or homeless. President George W. Bush directed PACOM to launch Operation Unified Assistance to provide relief.

54 NATO: Rewarding Service in the Alliance

Major General Rick Lynch, U.S. Army, and Lieutenant Colonel Phillip Cuccia, U.S. Army

Although the Army's focus is on Afghanistan and Iraq, we must understand NATO's operational capabilities and limitations.

59 Knowing the Rules: Planning Considerations for NATO Operations

Lieutenant Colonel David M. Toczek, U.S. Army

U.S. Army planners working with NATO face many challenges, including differences in logistics, communications, command relationships, troop availability, and national capabilities.

64 2d Place MacArthur Award—The Great Captains of Chaos: Developing Adaptive Leaders

Major F. John Burpo, U.S. Army

To attract and develop people to become adaptive leaders possessing enhanced skills, we must align leader-development programs for the new operating environment.

71 3d Place MacArthur Award—Leading Change: Could a Joint OER Be the Catalyst of Army Transformation?

Major Marshall V. Ecklund, U.S. Army

Adopting a joint OER would demonstrate the Army's commitment to developing leaders who think critically and strategically.

78 Control Roaming Dogs: Governance Operations in Future Conflict

Major Troy Thomas, U.S. Air Force

Governance operations have been treated as tangential postconflict missions, leaving field commanders ill-prepared for governance tasks and delaying consolidation of political aims.

86 Space: Inextricably Linked to Warfighting

Lieutenant General Larry J. Dodgen, U.S. Army

Moving from being "supported" by space assets to being "space-enabled," the Army is integrating space capabilities into routine operations to deliver space-based services to Soldiers.

95 The Modular Force: Division Operations

Lieutenant Colonel Telford E. Crisco, Jr., U.S. Army

The modular force division represents a step forward in our ability to generate and tailor more versatile combat power.

101 Soldiers in the Public Square: The Legacy of the Newburg Conspiracy

Lieutenant Colonel Dennis P. Chapman, U.S. Army National Guard

Military participation in the political debate on Iraq or any other issue would undermine the central feature of our government: checks and balances.

104 Preparing Field Grade Leaders for Today and Tomorrow

Brigadier General Volney J. Warner, U.S. Army, and Lieutenant Colonel James H. Willbanks, U.S. Army, Retired, Ph.D.

To respond to the Army's needs in meeting the challenges of the current dynamic operational environment, CGSC is undergoing a transformation.
